TO DEFEND SAN FRANCISCO

The Harbor Is Being Sown Thick With Torpedoes.

At Night Vessels Will Not Be Permitted to Enter or Leave the Harbor.

Five hundred submarine torpedoes are to be placed in San Francisco harbor almost immediately by the United States Government as a protection to this city in case a Spanish fleet should attempt to enter this port.

Manufacture of the explosive material has just been completed by the Giant Powder Company.
It is being placed in the proper receptacles, and the final preparations are being made to locate and anchor the submarine mines and connect them with the electric detonating machinery on shore.
It is understood that the torpedoes will extend between Alcatraz and Lime point on the Martin county shore and Alcatraz and Black point in San Francisco, and probably will also be extended to the Golden Gate and across the entrance to the harbor. Their location will be marked by buoys, and a channel for the ingress and egress of vessels will be left free, so that the pilots of the port may steer their way safely through the obstructions in the daytime, but at night vessels will not be permitted to enter or leave the harbor. Should Spanish war ships make their appearance off this coast the prohibition to pass out even during daylight will be made absolute. This is going to be an obstacle in the way of commerce, but it will effectively prevent the destruction of shipping in this port, and render an attempt to bombard San Francisco extremely hazardous to the enemy's fleets.

Both "contact" and "intent" torpedoes will be employed. The "contact" mines, as the name would indicate, are those which explode on being struck, as by a vessel, and are the most dangerous to peaceful merchantmen. The "intent" torpedoes are those which are exploded by electricity, and are, therefore, peculiarly effective as directed against hostile warships.

The torpedoes are being loaded with gun cotton and gelatine. Gun cotton is the most powerful explosive known, and gelatine is nitro-glycerine heated to the consistency of a thick jelly, in which condition it resembles soap in appearance but not in effect. The nitro glycerine is a compound of glycerine oil and sulphuric acid united with wood pulp, so as to be changed from liquid form to a plastic solid. As an explosive it ranks third; but is more commonly employed than fulminate of gold or fulminate of mercury owing to the great cost of production of the latter. The fulminate of mercury is used, however, as a detonator to explode the dynamite.

The dynamite is manufactured so as to contain as high as 90 per cent of the nitroglycerine. Its explosive power is sufficient to raise 150,000 times its own weight.
The dynamite is composed of 63 per cent of sulphuric acid and 48 per cent of nitric acid, which are mixed and then united with the glycerine oil, which is made from lye and candle drippings. The two classes of torpedoes are similar in material, save that the "contact" mines contain fulminate of mercury in order to render them sensitive to the touch, while the "intent" torpedoes are exploded through electric action on detonators of fulminate of mercury.

The responsibility of exploding the "intent" torpedoes is a great one, and has been placed by the Government with Captain W. F.
C. Hason, formerly of the United States Navy, an electrician of great experience and knowledge, who successfully filled the arduous position of chief electric engineer of the California Midwinter International Exposition.
The torpedoes will be connected by metal rods, from which electric wires will run to each explosive, so arranged that any number may be exploded at a time or all of them simultaneously.

The operation of exploding the desired torpedo at the proper moment is wonderfully simple. An officer—Captain Hason in our case—sits before a chart of the

This store is also anxious to earn a deserving title from the public; a title of merit, that carries with it the name of having meritorious goods at popular prices.

In order to do this it is necessary to be more than careful in the selections of goods—be cautious—knowing what the public tastes are we have used the precaution to import only first-class qualities in designs and materials such as are salable in the best markets of the world.
No dead stock is wanted or bought by us, no matter what the inducements. Still goods will sometimes accumulate faster than anticipated—they must be disposed of even at a sacrifice—that's what we are doing now—sacrificing a few dollars—you derive the benefit.

Don't fail to visit this store during the renovation sale—you will agree with us that it pay you to do so.
